PRICE ONE CENT.

HALF AN HOUR IN A RAILROAD OFFICE.

Traveller.—"New York," planting the price of a ticket. The ticket clerk jerks out a ticket, and jerks in the money almost in an instant, without a word, and the traveller leaves place for the next comer, who perhaps has the same destination, but who occupies much more time in making his wants known, something after this style:

"What's the fare to New York?"
"Four dollars."
"How long afore you start?"
"Ten minutes."
"Ah—can you change a fifty dollar bill?"

"Yes, sir."
"Give me the change in Boston money, (laying out the fifty,) and in five dollar bills, if you can."
Change is made, and the ticket thrown out, almost in a second of time.

"Do you get into New York as early now as usual?"
"Yes, sir."
"What time does the Felidely train leave to-morrow mornin'?"

"Seven-thirty."
By this time the querist has gathered up his bank notes, folded them up, put them smoothly into a pocket book, poked his umbrella into the stomach of a heated individual from the rural districts, who was waiting nervously behind him, and by the delay caused the collection of half a dozen other applicants for tickets.

Next comes the countryman's turn.
(Breathlessly)—"Thicket for Boston."
"You are in Boston now, sir."
"Oh—er! Yes, ha, ha, ha! I want to go to Plymouth (no show of money)."
"Forty-five cents!"—(waiting for a show of funds).

"Yes; well, I'll take one ticket."
"Yes, sir, forty-five cents." By this time the gentleman from the rural district comprehends the pay in advance principle adopted at all well-regulated railway stations, and, fishing into the profound depths of his pantaloons pocket, withdraws, in a spacious hand, a miscellaneous collection, which, from a hasty glance, appears to be composed of a piece of cavendish tobacco, a lead pencil, a piece of red chalk, a large jack-knife, a leather shoestring, a couple of buttons, a suspender buckle, and some change. From the latter, a twenty five cent piece, two half-dimes, two three-cent pieces, and four cents, are laboriously extracted, and deposited on the counter, from which they are rapidly swept by three or four dexterous passes of the clerk, who turns to serve a lady.

"I want a lady's ticket to Providence," depositing a five dollar note. Clark throws out a "lady's ticket," which bears a striking similarity to, and in fact would be called a twin brother of a "gentleman's ticket," and the change at the same time. Lady cautiously examines the bank note she has received in exchange—"Is this a good bill?"

"Certainly, madam, we give none other." Lady retires, perfectly satisfied. The next customer is an illustrious exile, whom we have every reason to suppose has recently fared sumptuously upon a repast in which onions must have figured conspicuously as a vegetable, and moderate priced whisky as the principal beverage.

"Shure an' what's the price of a chicken now to New York?"
"Deek passage, two dollars and a half."
"Wouldn't ye take a dollar and a half."
"Shure, it's all the money I've got at all, at all."
"No! two dollars and fifty cents." (Persuadably)—"Shure, wouldn't ye take two dollars?"

"Nix a cent less than two fifty. (Emphatically.) Pass your money or pass on."
Pat, finding blarney and persuasion of no use in this instance, counts out his cash, which the quick eye of the clerk discovers to be a little short of the required amount.

"Three cents more."
The stray three cent piece is reluctantly dropped from Patrick's warm palm, and the individual who succeeds anxiously inquires what time the five o'clock train leaves, and is seriously informed: "At sixty minutes past four."
The next inquirer—"Has Mr. Smith bought a ticket for this train?"

"Can't say, sir; don't know him."
"Oh! he's a dark complexioned man, had on a dark overcoat, and an umbrella under his arm."
In consideration of the fact that about fifty "dark-complexioned" individuals, with dark overcoats on, had purchased tickets of the clerk, some having umbrellas under their arms and some not, it is not very extraordinary that he does not recollect which one is Mr. Smith.

All the time these negotiations are going on, eager interrogators on the outer circle of the crowd about the office are propounding questions, and a running fire of them and replies fill up every possible pause.

"When does the next train start?"
"Ten minutes of five."
"Say, you! what do you tax to Mansfield?"
"Seventy-five cents."
Sailor.—Purser, give us a card for New Bedford. Slaps down a gold piece, sweeps ticket and change back into the crown of his hat, takes a bite of the weed, and rolls off to a car "well forfard."

"Does this train stop at L.?"
"No! this is the express train."
"Which one does?"
"Accommodation—leaves at two and one-half o'clock."
"Ticket—'arf to Providence."
"How old is the half ticket?"
"Hey?"
"How old is the child you want the half ticket for?"

"'Tween seven and eight."
"Is that the boy?" pointing to a lad of about eleven, who was endeavoring to make himself look as short as possible by crooking his legs and resting his chin on the counter.

"Yes, that's him; s'pose you only charge half price for boys."
"Full price for him, sir."
"Full price! why, he's only a boy; you hadn't order charge full price."
"Big enough to occupy a seat, sir; full price, if you please."
The applicant reluctantly draws out the money, and the boy grows so near eight or ten inches in as many seconds.

VOL. I. WASHINGTON, D. C., WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1861. No. 66.

"Tickets for New York," says another, throwing down a ten-dollar note. The clerk gives a rapid glance at the bank note, followed by a keen searching one at the applicant, and then replies: "Counterfeit!" The dropping of the under jaw, the blank and stupefied amazement of the latter at this announcement, proves at once the official's judgment was correct, and that the applicant was unconscious of the character of the note until he tendered it in payment for a ticket.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.
G. T. Brigham married a little girl, 14 years old, at Marlboro', Mass., about a year ago; after a month's trial of matrimony, she succeeded, and her husband sued for a writ of habeas corpus against her father, which was decided against the husband on Monday, as the little lady told the court that she was determined to break up a union who was sick of.

A second grasper at a young woman's ankle at Utica, N. Y., on Monday; she promptly kicked him in the face with her high-heeled boots, and laid him low.

In the autumn of 1847, a venerable old gentleman, bald, with thin silvery locks falling smoothly round his head, sat in a box of the old Park Theatre, accompanied by two young ladies. The first act was over, and barely had the drop curtain touched the stage, when a gentleman arose in box a little way off from where the venerable man sat, and in a loud voice shouted, "Ladies and gentlemen, I announce to you the presence of Hon. John Quincy Adams, ex-President of the United States!"

Instantaneously the audience arose, and three hearty cheers greeted the patriot, statesman, and sage. At the instant, too, the orchestra ceased their usual theatre airs, and gave in glorious style, "Hail Columbia," "Yankee Doodle," and the "Star-Spangled Banner," in rapid succession. The audience remained standing until the last note had quivered away.

These demonstrations were received with that serene modesty which ever dwells with true greatness—by a low, graceful bow, and without the utterance of a responsive word. The ex-President sat out the whole play. The next session of Congress witnessed the close of his memorable life.

Two Irishmen were going to fire off a cannon, just for fun; but being of rather an economical turn of mind, they did not wish to lose the ball. So one of them took an iron kettle in his hand to catch it in, and stationing himself in front of the loaded piece, he exclaimed to the other, who stood behind it, holding a lighted torch, "Touch it aisy, Pat!"

When the stock of Virginia was called at the New York board on Tuesday morning, the board gave three unanimous and hearty cheers for the Old Dominion and her loyalty to the common Union, and the dealings of the hour were arrested by this enthusiasm, until a Virginia member of the Exchange was called upon for a speech, and briefly and neatly responded to the compliment.

The value of the imports of the free States during the fiscal year 1859, was $169,162,776; and the exports were $295,812,879. The imports of the slave States were $187,286,756, and the exports $31,985,680. Of the exclusive Southern products, the exports from the United States were as follows: Cotton, $161,434,943; tobacco, $21,074,038; sugar, $574,869; molasses, $75,699; spirits from molasses, $760,889; tar, 141,058; rosin and turpentine, $2,248,281; rice, $2,207,148.

Rocking chairs are an American invention, and a correspondent of the Historical Magazine asks when they were introduced into use.
Twenty-five years ago, they were sent to Europe as presents, and in France were then regarded as great novelties.

The Kentucky Colonization Society has offered the free people of color in that State a free passage to Liberia, and support for three months after arrival. Every unmarried adult is also offered 50 acres of land, and married couples 100 acres, as a free gift.

A young girl nearly lost her life recently in Marion county, Oregon, by using a loaded gun barrel for a poker. The discharge grazed her head, cut off her hair on one side, and badly burned her face.

Since secession troubles have begun, a Boston house has sold 2,000 sets of infantry and rifle equipments, which have been sent South.
The same firm recently received a large order from North Carolina, payment for which was amply secured, but it was refused from patriotic motives.

The indebtedness of the several European Governments is as follows: Great Britain, $3,000,000,000; France, $1,700,000,000; Russia, $1,500,000,000; Austria, $1,575,000,000; Spain, $735,000,000; Holland, $450,000,000; Prussia, $160,000,000; Sardinia, $175,000,000; Belgium, $125,000,000; Denmark, $115,000, 000; all others, $500,000,000; total, $10,965, 000,000.

A son was arrested at Chicago, on Monday, at the instance of his old mother, for plundering her of $4.20.

A thief stole an overcoat, containing a number of unopened letters, at Cincinnati, on Wednesday. The owner advertised next day to the thief to return the letters and keep the coat; this was done, and the unopened letters were found to contain a large remittance.

Manufacturing at Dover is in a very prosperous condition; the Cocheco works are running full time, and have six months supply of cotton on hand. Nearly 300,000 yards more were printed in 1860 than in 1859. The increase valuation of Dover since 1856 has been $762,000, and her savings banks now hold $625,000 deposits, an increase of almost $80,000 during the last year.

The total exports from Philadelphia, for 1860, exceeded in value those of any year since 1854, and were greatly above the totals of 1858 and 1859.

He who is passionate and hasty is generally honest. It is your old dissembling hypocrite of whom you should beware. There's no deception in a bull-dog. It is only the cur that snarls up and bites when your back is turned.

The total number of hands employed in the English cotton factories in 1856, was 379,190; the estimated number of persons indirectly dependent on cotton manufactures, is 1,900,000.
England obtained from other sources than the United States, 860,000 bales of cotton.

PROSPECTUS OF THE WEEKLY NATIONAL REPUBLICAN.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December, 1860.
The undersigned have commenced the publication, in this city, of a weekly newspaper, called the National Republican.
It is printed on a large sheet, 27 by 42 inches, and is furnished at the low price stated below.
It will contain all the original matter of the daily National Republican, with the exception of local news not interesting to country subscribers.
It will give full reports of the proceedings of Congress, and of the other departments of the National Government.

It will contain all the news of the day, foreign and domestic, markets, &c., &c., as well as an original correspondence from all parts of the country. The miscellaneous department will receive special attention, and, in all respects, the effort will be made to establish the character of the National Republican as a FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

In politics, the paper will be Republican, sustaining the incoming Administration of Mr. Lincoln, but disclaiming, however, any pretension to be the organ of the President elect.

There is no other Republican paper in the District of Columbia, or in the vicinity of it, and it is believed that recent events have opened to such a paper an important sphere of useful effort. The time has come, when the actual administration of the Government upon Republican principles will explode the misrepresentations which have made those principles so distasteful to the South.

But it is not only here, and in this vicinity, that the projects of the National Republican hope to make it useful. To the whole country they offer a journal which will discuss national politics from a national standpoint, and which will never be swayed from patriotic duty by any overpowering pressure of local interest.

Prices, for Cash only.

To my former patrons, it is useless to say anything of my qualifications for the business; I have again embarked in it. To them, and the public generally, I will only say, I can at all times be found at home, and ready to wait on them. The one-price rule will be strictly adhered to. Give me a call.
